LOCAL CHARITY LAUNCHES NEW-LOOK WEB SITE

Local charity Parity for Disability have re-launched their web site with a new look aimed at easier navigating and providing more information.

The charity, which provides services in Hampshire, Surrey and Berkshire for children and young adults with multiple disabilities, hopes that the new site at www.parityfordisability.org.uk will be a more powerful tool for providing people with the information they are looking for.

The site also now offers forms for people to fill out if they wish to volunteer, take part in an event, or join the newsletter mailing list.

Parity Volunteer Jim Brunton, whose son uses the charity's day services, put in weeks of work creating the pages of the new site, and is now also maintaining it. Parity volunteer designer Trissy Norris came up with the new look for the site.

"It's an amazing resource," said Parity Executive Director Alison Cooper. "We will continue developing it in the future to reflect the needs of all people with multiple disabilities, their families and carers who may need information, as well as the charity's supporters."

To celebrate its launch Parity is holding a web competition for supporters to enter. On the new site there are two links to hidden pages. Anyone who finds both pages will have a phrase which they should send to the Parity office at info@parityfordisability.org.uk.

The competition closes at the end of March and all correct answers will be entered into a draw. The prize is a bottle of champagne.
